Thanks for giving me the opportunity to introduce myself. My name is Anubhav kumar and i am from begusarai bihar, currently i am final year undergraduate student in Information technology from Haldia institute of technology west bengal.

Apart from IT skills, my interest lies in management, dealing with people, working on a team and exploring new ideas.

I have been working on a final year project named Educator. This is an educational website and I am working as a team leader. I have a keen interest in playing football & reading self-help books and I love to write poetry and short stories.

Thank you.

What are your strengths and weaknesses?

Answer: To start with my weakness, my inability to say no puts me under a lot of stress at times and I waste my valuable time. However, I am learning to say No so that I can focus more on problem-solving skills and learning more about new domains and i feel am able to do that by making a todo list and prioritizing my work

Well, talking about my strength, I am good at handling pressure and team management. In my college, I am part of a technical society named ACM. Our group of members organize a few workshops and I work under deadlines with my other team members. I was also a part of a culture fest from where I learned more about people management.

Any questions from your side??

I am curious to know more about training and the work culture of the company.
